How to see a black cat on a dark night.

Use Miida "Nite-Owl" 8x56 Roof-Prism Binoculars. They view clearer and brighter under adverse light conditions where conventional binoculars are ineffective.

The secret is the "twilight factor." This new specification, emphasized in Nite-Owl optical design, takes both the magnification and objective lens diameter into consideration for evaluating dim light performance. Thus, a binocular with a high brightness factor in normal light may have a low twilight factor in dim light, and conversely a lower brightness factor formula may have a higher twilight factor in dim light. Nite-Owls have a high brightness factor of 49 and the unusually high twilight factor of 21.2—a combination unmatched by any other night glass.

Triple-coated optics minimize internal reflections and glare; prisms are strapped for greater durability. Small wonder Nite-Owls are favorites of travelers, photographers, hunters, boatmen, sports fans, and police.

At your dealer, or for literature write: Marubeni America Corporation, Miida Photo Division, 104 E. 25th St., New York, N.Y. 10010.

the Bianchi "Break Front" holster— hangs on like your life depended on it!

The Bianchi "Break Front" offers complete weapon security. Unique construction virtually locks your gun to the holster — eliminates the possibility of weapon theft from behind, yet with no loss of drawing speed. In fact, unique cylinder recess and carbon wire spring allow faster draw through the exclusive "break front" of the holster. There's not a police holster that can compare with it.

How to Lose $ by Not Spending

Every chief—faced with continually increasing budget squeezes—tries to save every cent he can.

This is most admirable, as long as it does NOT end up costing his department much more because of false economies!

One false economy many chiefs make is by having their current polygraphist give in-service polygraph training. The disadvantages of such an arrangement are as many, and as serious, as the outdated method of giving recruits "on-the-street" patrol training by experienced officers.

If you believe that rookies should have formal training in a police academy, don't you agree that your next polygraphist should have the finest formal polygraph training available?

Write—today—for information about our outstanding, and internationally recognized, formal polygraphist training course.

 The graduate polygraph examiner's effectiveness on the job is the primary measure of his training. The Backster School provides supervision for a two year period immediately following completion of the 216 hour academic phase of polygraph instruction. Under conditions involving made-quate safeguards, this supervision could be rather haphazard, primarily because of the lack of truly standardized approach. However, with diligent usage of the Standardized Polygraph Notebook and Technique Guide, field examiners and school instructors are effectively communicating, regardless of the distance between them. The School has been widely recognized and praised by the director of this school has become widely accepted within the profession. Write or call for additional information today.
